Quote from the Holy Fathers: “What do theaters bring to the hearts of men? The spirit of this world, the spirit of idleness, of speaking, of joking, of cunning and wickedness, of pride and presumption. They do not bring any moral good to anyone. The authors of these pieces and the actors only give people what they have in themselves, their own spirit. Do they think of public morality? Have they the intention of correcting peoples morals? None whatever.” - St. John of Kronstadt
